You no longer have to sit in a traditional and, perhaps, boring classroom in order to earn a high school diploma. You no longer have to sit with students who are half your age. You no longer have to be tied to one geographical location. Online high schools are now an option for students of all ages and you can work at home or you can work on the road. These schools work well both for traditionally-aged high school students and for those who have more life experience.

In this second edition of Complete Guide to Online High Schools: Distance learning options for teens and adults, Thomas Nixon has expanded the offerings by showcasing almost triple the number of online high schools. Just as his BestOnlineHighSchools.com website has grown over the years, so, too, has the size of this book.
