Principles of Geology: Or the Modern Changes of the Earth and Its Inhabitants Considered As Illustrative of Geology (Classic Reprint) Charles Lyell

Utm UBRA inrl tis now thirteen years and a half since the last or ninth edition of the Principles of Geology appeared; a long interval in the history of the progress of a science, in which so many able investigators and thinkers, in every civilised country of the world, are actively engaged. In re-editing the work, I have found it necessary entirely to re-write some chapters and to recast others, and to modify or omit some passages given in former editions. For the sake of those readers who are already familiar with the Principles, I subjoin a list of the chief additions now made for the first time, pointing out the pages at which corresponding matter occurs in the ninth and tenth editions. List of the Principal Additions and Corrections in the First Volume of the Tenth Edition of the Principles of Geology. Ninth Edition. Page~~ 30] to 53 J130 to 153 Q, Additions and Corrections. Page 14 The opinion of A naximander, that fish were the parents of mankind how far an anticipation of the modern doctrine of development. 139 An ahridged table of fosailiferous strata in their order of superposition, inserted from theE lements for the sake of reference. 136 !I The Ninth Chapter, on the progressive development of orto ganic life, has been entirely re-written.
